In addition to helping all types of individuals improve their game, Steve has conducted clinics with groups such as USA Today, FBI, the Department of Justice, SAIC and Nothrop Grumman.

Chantilly, VA; John O'Leary Golf Academy at Pleasant Valley Golf Club; John O'Leary

The John O'Leary Golf Academy at Pleasant Valley prides itself on providing first class experience and training.

Instructor John O'Leary was nominated as a PGA Mid-Atlantic Teacher of the Year in 2008 & 2009. John works with all levels of players from beginner to well-established tour players. He believes in building the golf swing by working from the ground up, and establishing solid fundamentals focusing on the importance of swinging the club on plane.

Through the use of the latest teaching technology including V1 teaching software, students have the advantage of viewing their swing with John so that they are able to see proper angles and swing plane.

In addition to being a top-tier instructor, John's tournament resume includes the 2007 PGA Championship and placement in the top 5 in an additional 5 national events the same year. In addition, he has won over 15 PGA and mini-Tour events throughout his career.

Leesburg, VA; Raspberry Falls Golf Club; John Miller

John Miller, PGA Class A professional, works with golfers of all abilities to improve their game and get more enjoyment out of golf. John strongly believes every golfer is unique, each with his or her own set of movements they do well and those they could improve on. His goal is to evaluate each student, make the body-swing connection and work within the framework of what each student can physically do to reach their full potential.

John is a short-game expert, and also specializes in specialty shots (bunkers, divots, uphill, sidehill, downhill), course management, and video analysis.

Alexandria, VA; Top Golf Alexandria; Stephen Moskal

Stephen Moskal is a member of the PGA of England and the PGA of France, and currently serves as the Director of Instruction at Top Golf Alexandria.
